

- 17 -

Abstract

FISH ATTRACTANT DISPERSER

- 5           A fish dispensing apparatus comprises first and second housing sections which interfit with one another. One or more fish dispensing openings communicate from the interior of the housing sections to the exterior thereof for distribution or dispersment of fish attractant through the openings when the openings are in open condition. A closure is desirably provided to respectively close the openings a desired amount. A rigid
- 10   passageway may be defined through the body by passageway members of the respective housing sections.